

Guest Room

To create a room in the Maison Stoney well-suited to both children and adults, designer Sandra Gaylord (Allied ASID) focused on using eco-friendly products in a palette of neutrals and muted blues. To fit two beds comfortably into the space, she positioned them at a 90-degree angle and designed each headboard with a side arm so that they could double as chaise lounges. Other space-saving innovations? A custom bed table turns into a desk, and the out-of-service fireplace was fitted with a dresser.

Sandra Gaylord

After working in Washington, D.C., for several years, Gaylord returned to the Lowcountry to open Gaylord Design LLC. She recently established an office in Royal Oak, Michigan, which is managed by award-winning designer David DeWitt. A certified kitchen designer, Gaylord has previously worked on showhouses in Washington, D.C. Her firm's work has appeared in DC-VA-MD Home+Design and Shades of Green.

Fit for family, this guest room features space-saving furnishings such as beds that double as chaise lounges.

Sitting Room

Cathy Spencer, Andrea Kocher, and Jason Spencer of Coastal Classics Interiors designed a comfortable gathering room for guests staying in the Maison Whiting. Traditional and Asian aesthetics come together through pieces like an English burl chest and a late-dynasty Chinese baby bath, while nautical antiques invoke the charm of old Charleston. Curves in the window cornices and upholstered furniture soften the angles of the room, providing a more intimate environment, while blue and cream tones reflect the inn's exterior.

Coastal Classics Interiors specializes in residential and hospitality design across a variety of styles. The firm collectively offers more than 20 years of design experience and has been featured in several media outlets, most notably Better Homes & Gardens and ABC's Extreme Makeover: Home Edition.
